EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN]

The Great Ice Gorge.

WILKESBARRE, March 24—No change in either this or Ransom gorge Anchor ice has accumulated at the north end of the latter making it nearly a mile in length At Tunkhannock the river is open almost from shore to shore while at Pittston it is frozen so solid that hundreds crossed to day. At the former place the current is swift, while at Pittston the water is still dammed up by the Wilkesbarre gorge Tunkhannock bridge narrowly escaped one of the piers is badly shattered ice breakers are all torn away and when the big island of ice comes down it is feared the structure must go The Wilkesbarre Company have had men at work to day strengthening the piers and abutments of their bridge with irons and other means. The Delaware and Hudson Company which own the railroad bridge three miles below here the Wilkesbarre Bridge Company and the City Council have under consideration a plan for blasting the foot of the gorge.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Postmaster Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, March 24—The Senate confirmed the nomination of Alex. Cross as postmaster of Georgetown, Colorado, vice McKenne removed.

Pardee's Nomination Laid Over

After five hours' debate on the nomination of Don A. Pardee as District Judge for Louisiana the Senate by a vote of 25 to 15, laid it on the table on motion of Edmunds. The Senate having adjourned sine die the judgeship which is now vacant must remain so till next session of Congress, as the President's power to make appointments to fill vacancies is restricted to such as occur during a recess of the Senate The tabling of Pardee's nomination places litigation in Louisiana in an embarrassing position as the District Judge alone has jurisdiction in bankruptcy and admiralty cases There is now in hand of the Register of District Court for distribution by order of the Judge about $72,000. Other cases in bankruptcy, involving over $200,000 are pending and will have to await the appointment of a successor to Durell. Pardee has unconditionally withdrawn from the contest

Other Nominations Failed.

Several other nominations failed among them those of Wm. M Mogdern and Cassius R Brennan, to be paymasters in the army under the new law

Dismissed for Carelessness.

A clerk in the postoffice department was requested to resign to-day by the Postmaster General because through his carelessness a railroad whose contract for carrying the mail provides for six times a week has been for the past three quarters reporting carrying only three times a week, but drawing pay for six times.

A Question of Expatriation.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—It appears the late John Mitchel, who was elected to Parliament from Tipperary as a subject of Queen Victoria was really a citizen of the United States, as shown by a transcript of records recently made in the office of the clerk of the supreme court of the District of Columbia for the British minister. It says Mitchel declared his intention and took out first papers in the county court of San Francisco 16th of October, 1853 and final papers which made him a full citizen, in the circuit court of the District of Columbia, May 8 1860

Another Rumored Resignation.

WASHINGTON March 24.—U S Treasurer Spinner had a long interview with the President to-day. There are rumors that unless certain contemplated appointments to subordinate places in General Spinner's bureau are made in accord with his views he will feel it incumbent on him to resign

SENATE—EXTRA SESSION.

WASHINGTON March 24

The Senate immediately after reading the journal, went into executive session The Senate confirmed the nomination of H M Atkinson of Nebraska, as commissioner of pensions and Oliver A Patton of West Virginia, as register of the land office at Salt Lake City

WASHINGTON March 24.—At 5 P. M while the Senate was still in executive session a committee of two was appointed to wait on the President and inform him that unless he had further business to communicate the Senate was ready to adjourn without day

Resolutions of thanks to President pro tem Ferry and Vice-President Wilson were offered by Cooper and Ransom, and adopted unanimously and at 5 30 the committee appointed to wait on the President reported that he had no further communication to make.

Boutwell then called up the resolution offered by him on Monday for final adjournment and moved to fill the blanks by inserting 5 45 P M, March 24th which was agreed to and the resolution adopted At the time specified President pro tem Ferry, with a few well chosen words, expressed his thanks for the courtesy shown him, and his kindly feeling for the Senators and declared the special session of the Senate of the Forty fourth Congress adjourned sine die.

Japanese management of postal communication with America gives much satisfaction except in the matter of newspaper postage payment being required at each end of the route. A request goes by this mail to Washington for a remedy

Japan is making extensive arrangements for a system of coast fortifications.

An American named Pease is reported to have been murdered by his companions in Bonin Islands Pease is reported to be little better than a pirate and is known to have been in the slave trade on a small scale among the eastern Islands The case is being investigated by the United States consul general.

The Japanese opposition to the Pacific Mail line between Yokohama and other native ports went into operation Feb 3d The Pacific Mail announced a sudden reduction in price averaging 60 per cent. The Japanese company then announced prices 30 per cent less than the Pacific Mail The latter cannot successfully compete with the new line as the Government is pledged to support it. Proposals have been made for the sale of all Pacific Mail ships of the Shanghai branch and the transfer of the business but is not likely to be accepted, as the Japanese company are already well supplied

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL

Bessie Turner still Testifying.

NEW YORK March 24—In the Beecher trial to day the cross examination of Bessie Turner was continued When Tilton took her up stairs to repeat the story about Beecher and his wife they remained until nearly dark Counsel vainly endeavored to induce her to fix the number of hours they were up stairs She would only reply two or three hours. She continued He didn't tell her Mrs Tilton had confessed to him her adultery with Beecher If she said so before the committee she must have got the idea from reading the papers and must have been mistaken She had talked about the case since yesterday but no person suggested to her how to explain her mis-statement made to the committee She had talked with Mrs Ovington Mr Sherman Mrs Sherman and Mrs Tilton about it Was stopping at Mrs Ovington's now When Tilton came to Mrs Morse for Mrs Tilton witness was on the stairs and saw him kneeling on one knee with the other one raised If she was a man she could show the position She could not distinguish any words he was saying She might have heard if he had spoken louder

Witness was asked if she told the committee that Tilton when kneeling to his wife vowed he loved her and asked her to come back to his home She replied she might have but did not remember She talked so fast before the committee she got things mixed up She couldn't tell from memory all she said to them She could only say she was trying to tell the truth to them The witness then repeated almost verbatim the story told in her direct examination of the passage between Grandma Morse and Tilton Mrs Tilton reclining and witness sitting up with Tilton and hearing a repetition of his charges against his wife and Beecher She remembered seeing Beecher in Mrs. Tilton's room talking to her She was half reclining on pillows but did not remember what was said. In January she went to school Mrs Tilton spoke to her about going this was after the retraction was signed. Tilton also told her he and Elizabeth were going to do something nice for her They were going to send her to Steubenville to school. He said he knew the principal of the school The attention of witness was drawn to her testimony on these points before the committee and read to her, but she could recollect nothing about it. She was questioned about a Miss Vance a schoolmate at Steubenville who told her once she was about to visit Brooklyn and said she (witness) may have told her she must visit Mr and Mrs Tilton they were such nice people that she was much attached to them and she would be delighted with Tilton he was such a perfect gentleman Witness was further questioned in regard to her antecedents where she had lived since she was old enough to remember, and from her answers it appeared she had lived with various parties in New York that some two or three months before going to Tilton's she was in a dollar store, from which she was discharged but was not accused of anything She had no recollection how she got the position She went to Tilton's in 1864 and was there off and on for ten years Witness was then questioned in regard to a letter written at Tilton's dictation She didn't remember if he had made any mistakes I don't remember any mistakes or errors he made in the repetition in it. If he had made any error or told a falsehood I don't think I would have put it down He dictated so fast I did not take time to observe It seems to me he dictated faster than I could write and he had to stop two or three times. I think I told him he was dictating too fast. I wrote as he dictated

Mr Fullerton read a sentence from a letter dated January 10th 1871 stating that Mrs. Morse had repeatedly offered Bessie presents to tell a story about Tilton and that the writer had been persuaded that the kind attentions shown by Tilton to her were untrue Witness stated this was not true Fullerton read that the writer did not want to be used by Mrs. Morse to bring trouble on her two best friends—Mrs. Tilton and her husband—and she was asked if this was true. Witness replied that it was Tilton's dictation and her writing Witness testified that she wrote another letter for Mrs. Tilton she wrote it from a copy prepared by Tilton Mrs. Tilton handed her the copy in her (Mrs. Tilton's) handwriting Witness here identified the letter dated January 20 1871 It was read and stated that the story that Tilton had carried her in his arms to his bed screaming was a wicked lie It was signed 'Bessie T' Witness continued This was the first time she ever saw the story in this form He never carried her to his bed screaming He had attempted to violate her person because Mrs Tilton told her so Witness did not think she could truthfully say of her own view that Tilton attempted to violate her person She was asleep when he took her from bed and did not wake up until she was in his room and he standing over her She signed the letter because she loved Mrs Tilton and it would get Tilton out of all his trouble with Bowen Recess

NEW YORK March 24—After recess Bessie Turner resumed and Fullerton announced he was through with her

The re direct, by Porter consisted simply of the question of what she was doing at Beaver Pa., to which she replied she was teaching school.

Fullerton asked why she left. She replied she was forced to leave because of the notoriety she had obtained in connection with the scandal Bessie was then allowed to leave the stand

Geo. L Perkins,

The next witness testified to seeing Beecher and wife about the 7th of June, 1873 on the train of the Boston and Albany railway

Cross examined Beecher got off the train at Worcester

George L. Sedgwick,

A lawyer, was the next witness He testified to having seen Tilton marching between Mrs Woodhull and Miss Claflin in a procession in honor of Russell the communist

C C. Higgins,

Also a lawyer, testified to seeing Tilton riding in a procession in a carriage with Woodhull and Claflin This was as the procession was about to break up

John C. Southwick

Was the next witness He testified to having loaned Tilton $1,500 to start the Golden Age also to conversations with Tilton after the publication of the Woodhull scandal in which Tilton praised Mrs. Woodhull as a good pure woman, gloried in having written her life and in reply to witness question denied there was a word of truth in the story about his wife having committed adultery with Beecher, also denied there was any truth in the story of Moulton's going to Beecher with a pistol Southwick is a partner of Jackson Schultz His testimony with reference to money loaned to Tilton was substantially the same as that given by Schultz with regard to the same matter Referring to the arrangement by which he and Schultz got released from any further payments to the Age he said Woodruff had spoken to him about it He was asked what representations Woodruff made to him when he proposed to him to surrender the security Counsel for the prosecution objected and after a long argument the question was allowed

Witness answered Woodruff said they must go out of the Golden Age business that Tilton hadn't conducted the paper as he ought that he had written the life of Woodhull and run the paper in the interest of Greeley Also said he had slandered a gentleman in Brooklyn and he could never trust him afterwards. Woodruff said give up these notes make a present of them and release myself from obligations They had a conversation some time afterwards which led to the surrender of the notes Beach moved to strike out these two last conversations Evarts wanted to be heard in the matter and the court said he would consider the subject Beach read a letter accompanying the surrender of the notes to Tilton and handed it to witness, who identified his signature among others attached

Counsel waived cross-examination and the court adjourned

CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO March 24—Judge Morrison this morning rendered an important decision in the case of Charles Green et al vs Daniel Meyer et al Several similar actions are now pending and the amount of money involved in the transactions between the Grangers and Meyer approximate one million dollars The evidence in the case shows that Morgan's Sons through their agent Wolcott received from the plaintiff in this case a lot of grain for shipment Wolcott procured a bill of lading invoice and policy of insurance in the name of Morgan's Sons and turned them over to Daniel Meyer who made advances on them Morgan's Sons failed to pay these Grangers the advances they agreed to and plaintiff went to Meyer and demanded possession of the property Meyer refused to deliver The court decided that Morgan's Sons through their agent Wolcott had no right as factors to pledge as security for their individual debt to Meyer the goods of their principal and ordered judgment to be entered for plaintiffs in the sum of $34 635 with legal interest from the 21st October 1874 Judgment in gold coin

A LETTER OF EXPLANATION

H W Waterson editor in chief of the Louisville Courier Journal, having been connected in the public prints with Fremont's El Paso railway swindle, rises to explain and thus delivers himself in a letter to the New York Sun

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir Will you allow an unhappy Christian journalist an opportunity to make a few desultory remarks touching certain picturesque insinuations contained among the Fremont correspondence and published in a recent issue of the Sun?

Let me observe to begin with that for many years I have been conscious of standing on the rugged edge of a volcano Gazing down into the yawning depths of a dark and mysterious career to dread with the coming of each day the revealing sunbeams of truth sublime and fatal! I have escaped many disastrous chances male and female That I had actually swallowed my mother in-law for the purpose of abridging a rather stale and harmless joke that I had tampered with the young lady of Gloster, not to mention Col Susan B Anthony that I was suspected of a leaning toward heterodox opinions in the Beecher business, that I had played draw poker with the venerable editor of the New York Evening Post and kept company with Murat Halstead—calumnies like these have found me bewildered but not quite blighted. None of them happened to strike my weak suit You come along now with the double barreled cut-and thrust disclosure that I refused $400 000 of El Paso stock for my poor services as a country editor 'What have I ever done to you that you should accuse me of a thing like that? Lord! Journalism, like preaching must have risen indeed! I confess that I have always held myself at a good account I hate a cheap man as I hate a poor man but I little dreamed that my integrity was capable of such a flight as you have given it Why sir I am actually censured because I declined a glittering bribe and in order to make out a case it is stated that Mr Haldeman was fully in favor of taking the stock It is not even pretended that anything at all came of the transaction large as it is represented to have been—unless you can extend the revelations of that convenient budget of yours Suppose you search again and see if you cannot find some smug faced scrap, some sneaking, long-haired proposal, some vindictive tell tale receipt, which will rescue me from the shame of being the ass you obviously take me for

In the meantime let me say that there never was any serious consideration given the El Paso offer in the Courier Journal office This I declare upon my honor The stock lay up on my table a week or more I remember all about it how it looked and how it came to be there, and who brought it, and what was said It was sealed up in a faded yellow envelope and tied with a worn red string as though that were not its first adventure. It had a weary, rest seeking, sickly look The ashen hue of death was on it Methinks I see it now, propped against an elderly ink pot that gave it a sort of charitable entertainment enjoying the silent sympathy and companionship of a bronze statuette of General Benjamin F Butler which surmounted by a bronze spoon of genteel appearance did duty in those days as a paper weight. I will not swear that it did not make dishonorable proposals to a neighboring medallion of Lola Montez bequeathed me by Mr Prentice But this I do know that it tempted neither me nor Mr Haldeman who laughed at it and at the good natured busybody to whose meddlesome and restless affection we owed the offer I returned it to our excellent Col Sellers with a casual remark about the prismatic tints of the evolutionary rainbow I told him he should write whatever he pleased in the Courier Journal for nothing He did so and when I got tired of it and found the enterprise taking the look of a job I stopped him and joined in the disclosures that followed This is all I know about it but as Congress has adjourned hadn't you better urge an investigation This thing of jerking a man up by his collar and punishing him because he didn't sell himself is calculated, if I might be allowed the expression to demoralize the youth of the country It ought to be checked It is demurrable for its repugnance [illegible] and not founded in the fixed principles of a sound theology

Do print this If it should suggest an autobiographic speculation and you like the style, telegraph me I can come to time with columns of the same sort

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs that difficulties have arisen between the Indian Government and the King of Burmah regarding boundaries and the latter's claim to sovereignty over several independent States In spite of Lord Northbrook's proposal for a mixed commission for settlement of the questions at issue the King has occupied the disputed territory, and refuses to withdraw The British authorities insist on a settlement by the means they have proposed and troops are going to British Burmah

In the debate in the Senate on the Hawaiian Reciprocity Treaty, both of Oregon's senators took part These gentleman argued that as the treaty does not impose any rates of duty, but merely proposes to remove certain duties altogether, it is not liable to objection based on the Congressional requirements that all bills for raising revenues levying taxes or appropriating money must originate in the House and be subject to Congressional action However this might be, they called attention to the fact that, in order to avoid such possible objections the treaty itself provided that final ratifications shall not be exchanged until Congress shall have passed all the laws necessary to carry it into effect They also contended that under Morrill's resolution of strict construction, the Government could not make a loan, pledging the payment of interest or otherwise pledge any of the revenue in advance As precedents showing the constitutional power of the President and the Senate to make such treaties, contingent upon appropriate legislation by Congress they referred to the tonnage treaty with France negotiated in 1822 and also to the Canadian Reciprocity Treaty which went into effect in 1854, and continued in force twelve years Mitchell and Kelly in the course of their remarks stated that the English colonies on the Pacific Ocean have already made a proposition to the Government of Hawaii for a similar reciprocity arrangement which if consummated would enable British Columbia to entirely deprive the State of Oregon of its present profitable trade in supplying the Sandwich Islands with lumber, wine preserved salmon etc all of which are produced equally well in British Columbia Mitchell spoke for an hour and a quarter, showing the great advantage to accrue to the Pacific Coast in exchange of commodities He also alluded to the principal advantages to the United States in acquiring control of the Hawaiian Islands, to the exclusion of the British

REVENUE DECISION

The commissioner of internal revenue has decided with reference to the tax upon medicines under the law of Feb 8, 1875 that two classes heretofore held to be liable to the stamp tax are conditionally exempted

First—Officinal medicines or medicines made and compounded according to formulas published in authorized standard medical authorities, but which have heretofore been put up in a style or manner similar to that of patent or proprietary medicines in general Second—Medicines unofficinal, or made and compounded according to unpublished formulas In the first of these cases the condition on which the exemption is made to depend is that the formula shall be published on the label and Dispensatory or Pharmacopoeia or Pharmaceutical Journal or other standard medical authority where such formula is published shall be distinctly referred to on the label

In the second place all proprietorship must be disclaimed, and to remove all semblance of any claim to proprietorship or claim to have any private formula, or occult secret, or art for making or preparing the same the maker or compounder must publish on his labels the exact formula which he uses, so that the medicinal article may be free and open to the trade if they see fit to make or compound the same article The formula in all cases must be published in form and in manner, and indicated by such weights and measures as are generally adopted by the standard medical authorities

CIVIL RIGHTS IN VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va March 8—The opening of the Richmond theater to night for the first time since the passage of the civil rights bill attracted an immense crowd both inside and out, in the anticipation that the negroes would attempt to exercise their newly acquired rights There was general disappointment as to any concerted action for only one negro man entered the theater It is not known how he procured a ticket but as soon as he was discovered in the parquette there was considerable excitement and vociferous cries of 'put him out!' during which the negro remained perfectly quiet This soon brought Manager Powell to the scene who to avoid a difficulty which seemed imminent requested the negro to step into the lobby where after some talk he prevailed upon the negro to exchange his ticket for one for the gallery hitherto set apart for colored people refunding him the difference in price Shortly afterwards it was discovered that an octoroon courtesan was in the dress circle her ticket there having been purchased by a white man The attention of the police being called to her she was requested to leave the dress circle not on account of race or color but because of her character The audience during those two incidents were in a high state of excitement but the performance closed without further interruption The white man who bought the ticket for the woman had a personal difficulty afterward in the barroom on account of the part he had taken, and was roughly handled

MARSHAL McMAHON'S POSITION

The Paris correspondent of the London Times writing about Marshal MacMahon's position on the 17th of February says 'Why however cannot the Marshal succeed in forming a Cabinet' Because he has listened to dangerous counselors who have drawn him into the scene so that instead of being above all parties they have henceforth identified him with one side of the Assembly depriving him of the independence requisite for speaking solely in the name of the country This very mistake caused the fall of M Thiers and the Marshal has been induced to repeat it M Thiers naturally fell when he told the Assembly 'As for me I have engagements with the Republican party I am bound to keep them, but you are free you can do what you like' In this manner the Marshal has been made to say that as a defender of conservative interests—a task he could not abandon—he could not concur in the Republican vote of the Assembly Now as in the eyes of perfectly impartial men there is no reason to think Republican principles wisely applied would not be as much for the welfare of France as conservative principles placed at the service of the reaction, the head of the Government had no right to express a preference for the latter rather than the former He ought to speak only in the name and in behalf of the country Moreover by making the head of the State the exclusive champion of one party he is deprived of the means of combating others without exposing himself to the reproach of being partial and arbitrary and he is prevented from controlling events which are becoming his master This is proved by his being forced to declare that he must wait to form a Cabinet till the constitutional laws have been passed or rejected There is this strange inconsistency, the Marshal intervenes to reject the Senate bill, thus imperiling the passing of the constitutional laws and after doing this he declares he cannot form a Cabinet, till those laws have been passed The proper course was to remain at the elevation assigned to the supreme power form a responsible Cabinet make it intervene in the discussion not to defeat the laws but enlighten the discussion by the authority of the governmental opinion get possession of the direction of the debate, and then await the final vote of the sovereign Assembly"

THE PENNSYLVANIA FLOODS

WILKESBARRE, March 18—The river is falling slowly this afternoon and is now nearly two feet lower than yesterday For five miles below here the ice is jammed in a solid mass The depot of the Lehigh Valley railroad and about twenty houses were flooded at Forty Fort. A little below and on the other side of the river from Plainsville the ice piled up and turned the water out of the channel, cut through the cemetery flooding the flat and rushing down through the main streets of Kingston badly frightening the people Fences and trees were swept away and a large barn that had withstood the floods of many years was carried off Great fears are felt at Kingston lest another rise shall carry the water through the channel formed through the cemetery and come down on the town, in which event the loss would be very great. It will take ten days to clear the Lehigh railroad of ice, should the water fall and there be no further rise

PITTSTON, Pa, March 18—The loss by the flood, here exceeds $500,000 The ice is again gorged at Ransom, three miles above here to the height of twenty feet. The gorge extends up the river about five miles The Lehigh Valley Railroad track is completely covered with ice, six feet deep Many mines have stopped work, being unable to ship coal No trains have reached here either way as yet. There is the greatest anxiety as to the effect of the movement of the gorge when the weather moderates

SUNBURY Pa March 18—The prospect below Watsontown, on the West Branch, is about the same this evening The town is in no danger but farms below are flooded, and the river is running through the fields.

COLUMBIA, Pa., March 18—The ice in the Susquehanna here began running this afternoon, and at 8 o'clock this evening it carried away the winding bridge of the tidewater canal at Wrightsonville and moved a pier of the Columbia bridge rendering it impassably for trains Ice and water have considerable damaged the Pennsylvania railroad tracks west of here Ice is piled on the tracks, delaying the trains and cutting down telegraph poles, At Marietta the tow path of the canal is torn out and a number of boats are stranded on the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's track

DECISION BY THE COURT OF COMMISSIONERS OF ALABAMA CLAIMS

WASHINGTON March 18—The case of Moses Hyneman, complainant vs the United States respondent No 643 was decided in the court of commissioners of Alabama claims to-day Judge Porter delivering the opinion

In December, 1862 the complainant shipped from New York by the steamer Ariel certain merchandise destined for San Francisco. When the Ariel had prosecuted her voyage about as far as Cuba she was pursued fired on and stopped by the rebel cruiser Alabama. The Ariel had on board 607 passengers including 140 United States marines and their officers too many to be taken on board the Alabama or to be sent adrift in small boats and the Alabama commander extorted from the master of the Ariel a ransom bond, executed by the master for himself and the owners of the ship and of its cargo, agreeing to pay the sum of $261,000 to the President of the Confederate States thirty days after the conclusion of the war On the arrival of the goods at San Francisco, the owners of the steamship placed the matter in the hands of professional adjusters, they fixed the sum which would be payable by Hyneman as his portion of the bond at $4-880 53, and his portion of the expenses of adjustment at $78 73 He paid the last mentioned sum in gold, and he claims to recover it from the money awarded to the United States at Geneva The judge in deciding the case, says Its peculiarity is that payment of the bond was never demanded, and, as the facts show never could have been enforced; and that it must be regarded now as an instrument utterly void in law The claimant suffered nothing at the hands of the Alabama, which did no damage whatever to the Ariel or cargo and did not exact from her the payment of a dollar of money Apprehension on the part of the owners of the Ariel that they might at some time be required to pay, led them to demand the money from claimant; and he to save the trouble of a contest over it, paid the sum required If he has lost, by the transaction he has been unfortunate but it is plain to us that his loss is not one directly resulting from damage caused by the Alabama, as these terms are employed in the act of Congress whence our powers are derived'

PICKING UP A WASP—A West Hill minister picked up a frozen wasp on the side walk recently, and, with a view of advancing the interests of science carried it in the house and held it by the tail while he warmed its ears over a lamp chimney. His object was to see if wasps froze to death or merely lay dormant during the winter He is of the opinion that they lie dormant and of the dormantest kind at that and when they revive he says, the tail thaws out first, for while this one's head, right over the lamp, was so stiff and cold that it could not wink, its probe worked with such inconceivable rapidity that the minister couldn't gasp enough to keep up with it He threw the vicious thing down the lamp chimney, and said he didn't want any more truck with a dormant wasp at which his wife burst into tears and asked how he, a minister of the Gospel, could use such language, right before the children, too

The Record of Tuesday says "To-day the city or town charter of Independence is on trial, as an Indian was taken up by the town marshal on a charge of drunkenness and will be tried before the recorder The lawyers are determined to find out if the town charter of Independence can be made to hold together long enough to be enforced. There seems to be a doubt if it has vitality.'

THE TERRITORIES

J M. Scanland, Esq., a well known journalist from the East is in Salt Lake City, and will go to Beaver to report the Mountain Meadow massacre trials for the Chicago Times

The grangers have incorporated a company under the name of Patrons Walla Walla Manufacturing Company Their first efforts in the manufacturing line will be made on the first day of next month

The Corinne Mail has it that the Utah Western railway is making overtures to a railroad combination for a direct line from Montana to Corinne, to connect with a steamer line between the two termini.

The Tribune says 'Utah's mines are not confined to a few miles in extent, but extend hundreds of miles and embrace eighty-six mining districts affording the greatest field for capitalists the world ever saw. Our mining resources are inexhaustible, and Utah, which now stands third, bids fair to stand first on the list of precious metal-producing countries'

A company of Chinamen, numbering about twenty, are about to start from Walla Walla to the mines on the Columbia in the neighborhood of White Stone. These mines, although not paying largely, are good China diggings, and the Chinamen say they bid fair to hold out for an indefinite length of time. They will, this season, furnish some hundreds of hands with employment.

A gentleman over from the north side of Snake river informs the Walla Walla Spirit that settlers up there think that the hard winter brought on some kind of disease which carried off many animals, that would have lived but for that cause as the ground in that neighborhood was only covered with snow for two or three weeks, and many animals died that appeared in quite good flesh

The Boise City Statesman of the 18th inst. says The sad news was received here last evening that a snowslide in Ruby's gulch, 14 miles from here, had covered the cabin of William Bates, former partner of Hugh Thompson in the blacksmithing business. It is presumed that Bates was in the cabin as no traces of him can be found outside At noon yesterday three men went to work to dig him out but at last accounts had not reached the cabin

There was a big snow slide about four miles above Boise City, in Cottonwood canyon, on the Idaho road, on the 15th The up stage had not got through at a late hour next day and it is doubtful if the stage reached Idaho City the day following The only slide of any consequence that has previously happened in this canyon, was in the spring of 1865, just about ten years ago It was then leveled off and the stage drove over the snow, 50 feet deep at that point for several weeks.

Up on Snake river some of the people are trying to make the best of a hard winter and are now making good wages in skinning dead cattle They have a quicker process, than is usually employed; they tie the head of the dead animal to a stake driven into the ground, cut the skin around the neck and rip the hide open down the legs and belly, then hitch a span of horses to the skin at the neck, and in a minute pull it clean off, quicker, and easier than any other way Two men with a span of horses can make $20 a day in this way

The Walla Walla Spirit says a man who has been looking after his stock on Snake river, in the vicinity of Dead Man's Hollow, says in that neighborhood the loss has probably been about 25 per cent of all the cattle there One man who had 400 head in the fall thinks he has lost 150 and others in nearly the same proportion He says, however, that it is impossible to tell just how much loss they have sustained, as the storms scattered the stock in every direction, and it is impossible for owners to tell whether the cattle are dead or only strayed

ALFONSO AND SERRANO

[From N. Y Herald.]

The meeting between Alfonso the King of Spain, and Serrano, the old Dictator, must have been interesting Serrano was the favorite of the Queen Alfonso's mother She raised him to power, rank and fortune. He served her so long as the service was profitable, and yet it was through him that the revolution which led to her overthrow succeeded The exile of the Queen's family and her abdication are the work of Serrano. The fact that he should accept as a sovereign the son of a woman he overthrew leads us to question the sincerity of the reconciliation Serrano belongs to the worst class of modern statesmen His rank represents favoritism, his policy has always been rude, domineering corrupt and arbitrary He has been simply a soldier of fortune. The government which suits him best is the government which serves best the interests of Marshal Serrano He served Amadeus so long as that King was disposed to listen to his counsels and overthrew him when the proposed his own policy He returned to Spain and offered his sword to Castelar for the purpose of suppressing the intransigentist rebellion, and by his influence the Republic was overthrown by the point of the bayonet. He will support Prince Alfonso just so long as it suits his ambition Serrano however, is so well known in Spain that we question whether his influence is as powerful now as it has been The men who surround the new King are not his friends, and he has betrayed so many causes successfully that they will scarcely give him an opportunity of betraying that of the new monarch

THE LAST HOURS OF VASQUEZ

The San Francisco papers contain lengthy accounts of the execution of the notorious bandit chief Tiburcio Vasquez, and of the scenes and circumstances connected with his last hours On the evening before the execution, Sheriff Adams being alone in the cell with the prisoner said to him

Tiburcio we are now sitting here alone in the deep silence of the night. It is a good time to think Now if there is anything you desire to say and have it go forth as your last words you can It shall be taken down to morrow submitted to you, when, if found correct, you can attach your signature to it

The prisoner remained silent for several moments, gazing in a thoughtful manner into the fire, then with a snap of his finger, which he darted out in a nervous manner pretty much like a snapping tortoise pokes out his head after a lazy fish, said.

"TO THE FATHERS AND MOTHERS OF CHILDREN

Standing on the portals of the unknown and unknowable world, and looking back upon the life of this as I have seen it I would urge upon you to make your greatest care to so train, influence, instruct and govern the young to whom you have given life, that they be kept aloof, as far as it is in the nature of things possible, from the degrading companionship of the immoral and vicious The general welfare of society depends upon the strict performance on your part of this duty; the state of society in the next generation depends upon the manner in which the children of the present are instructed and trained. I wish the young throughout the world, who may read the incidents of my life, to take warning in time by the example before them of me, and to realize the full force of the saying that, 'the way of the transgressor is hard,' the truth of which is now being verified to me. Yet the world must not be allowed to think that in anything I have said I reflect upon the instruction and training I received from my own parents. I affirm that they did all that they could to bring me up in a right way. Circumstances which they could not control threw me among vicious associations, and I disobeyed their wishes and commands.

'I humbly ask the pardon of each and every one that I have offended, or injured, asking their pardon with all the earnestness that only a dying man can I ask also the prayers of all good and Christian people, that forgiveness may be extended to me not only by those that I have wronged, but by the great Father, whose laws I have so ruthlessly trampled upon. The forgiveness that I ask of those whom I have wronged I freely and completely give to all those who have injured me. I thank my counsel, each and every one of them, for their attention to me in my hour of distress I express my gratitude to Sheriff Adams, and Deputies Winchell, Sellman and Curtis, for their great kindness extended to me during the long period I have been in their custody. I thank my brothers for their brotherly love extended to me during all the time of my troubles, and to my darling and beloved sister I render inexpressible thanks. Oh! sister of mine, thy love to me will buoy me up in my last moments I commend my soul and the hereafter that is before me to the guiding Maker, without whose help I can never expect complete pardon. Farewell brothers farewell sister dear, farewell all. The end is come (Signed) TIBURCIO VASQUEZ"

"TO MY FORMER ASSOCIATES.

"I wish you, who will doubtless expect to hear some last word of farewell from me, whose fortunes and adventures you have shared, to ponder well the few words I now deem it proper to say to you. You must well know that I could, had I been so disposed, have disclosed to the authorities and the world the perpetrators of many atrocities and crimes, and thus have saved my own life; so you can see, if the world cannot, that to a certain extent this explanation is on my part voluntary I wish you to especially understand that; while I know I have not committed the immediate crimes of which I have been convicted, and for which I am about to suffer death and have not at any time shed human blood or taken the life of my fellowmen, common sense compels me to understand and recognize the justness of the law which holds me responsible for the innocent lives lost in the prosecution of my unlawful calling of robbery. The threats of revenge which I hear have been made by some of my friends—perhaps to retaliate by outrages on the community at large, and by the assassination of my captors, the jury who convicted me, or the officers who prosecuted me or held me a prisoner—are foolish and wrong; for all these people have simply represented the law, and have acted only in the interests of society. By the course threatened you could do me no earthly good, but only bring yourself in the end to my own fate. Take warning by my fate, and change your course of life while you may I, Tiburcio Vasquez now about to pay the penalty of a misdirected life, say this to you, my former companions, with the solemn earnestness of a dying man

"What is that Tiburcio?" asked the sheriff

"It is that when I am taken upon the scaffold to meet my doom that you give me a glass of wine and one of the best cigars that can be obtained in San Jose I want to die with the taste of wine and tobacco on my lips"

ARE THE PRESS DISPATCHES RELIABLE?

In order to prove that the Associated Press are in the habit of distorting facts, and fabricating untruthful reports, and sending them out as dispatches to deceive and mislead the public, the Portland Bulletin goes back and quotes the Press dispatches of January 5th, concerning the troubles in Louisiana, the disturbances in the legislature having taken place on the 4th. It would naturally be expected that amidst the excitement of that occasion there would be errors of detail in the first reports which were telegraphed immediately. Slight errors under such circumstances would be overlooked, as something to which there would be liability, no matter how great care was taken to avoid them. It is therefore exceedingly creditable to the Associated Press and a fine illustration of the reliability of the dispatches sent by their agents, to find on re-examination, their prompt report made under all the embarrassing circumstances of that case, was in all essential points correct, and has since been fully corroborated by the report of the Congressional Committee charged with the investigation of the facts. Those readers of the Bulletin who see no other paper, if there are any such, will probably think, however, that the telegraphic report was contradicted by the report of the committee, inasmuch as the Bulletin, instead of publishing the latter gave its readers as the committee's report, some extracts from a paper presented to the House by Mr. Geo. F. Hoar, opposing the report, and has never corrected that misrepresentation.

"TRUTHFUL JEEMS."

Our mentioning that in July, 1870, Mr. James O'Meara wrote an editorial for the Bulletin, of which he was then the editor, urging as the only correct orthography for the name of our beautiful river a spelling which he now opposes through the columns of the Sunday Welcome, seems to have excited him to an astonishing pitch. His rage is uncontrollable. It requires four columns of the Welcome for his reply. And such a reply! We have seen a good deal of O'Meara's writing one time and another, the earliest specimen of it that has ever come under our notice being a photographic copy of the oath of allegiance he took in 1854 to the King of the Hawaiian Islands, and the latest being the characteristic article in the Welcome to which we have just referred; and all except the Kanaka document have been characterized by a redundancy of words and a plentiful lack of point. But in this respect the four-column diatribe in the Welcome vastly surpasses anything from the same source—or any source—which we have ever seen before. It is "words, words, words." The substance of it—unless pointless billingsgate is to be accounted substance—might possibly fill a quarter of a column, certainly not any more.

For reasons that will be obvious as we proceed, we do not propose to enter into any controversy with the Welcome, on the question which of the two contradictory positions he has taken on the orthography of the river is the more correct; and we should, perhaps, take no notice whatever of the article, referred to, but for the fact that O'Meara has chosen, prompted, as he admits, by malice toward Judge Deady, to assume and assert that the Judge was the writer of the editorial in the OREGONIAN which gave such deep offense. Justice to Judge Deady, and to ourselves, requires that we should contradict that reckless and unprofessional falsehood. Judge Deady has never to our knowledge since the day we took charge of the OREGONIAN, nearly three years ago, written an editorial article, long or short, for these columns. Except when the editor of the OREGONIAN is absent he writes the editorials himself, and is alone responsible for them. Every word of the article which so exasperated O'Meara was written by the editor of the OREGONIAN—excepting, of course, what was copied from the Bulletin of July 1870, which O'Meara wrote. The copy of the extract from the Bulletin, was in the possession of Judge Deady, and at our request he permitted us to have the use of it. That is the extent of his connection with the matter.

One thing more in O'Meara's four columns of Sunday blackguardism deserves a passing notice. After saying he was urged by Judge Deady to write the article published in the Bulletin in 1870, and wrote it at his solicitation and under an erroneous impression as to what was the right side of the orthographical controversy, he proceeds:

> "But there was after all, we are willing to admit, a more powerful, and, in one sense, cogent [the italics are O'Meara's] reason, why he succeeded so well with his pressing suit. It should be remembered that we did not own the establishment; that we were simply employed to write for it; and that its owner was deeply immersed in law suits before nearly all the courts at that time. His position gave to "Wallamet" the favor it then found in those columns above the force of any argument affecting the distinctive question itself."

"That's just a swatch o' Hornbook's way," and the confession of it is exactly equivalent to saying: "Mr. Holladay, who owned the Bulletin, was engaged in lawsuits. It was his purpose to bring outside influences, such as newspapers, &c., to bear on the courts to carry his cases through regardless of their merits. For this purpose, that he might unduly influence judicial decisions by flattering or abusing the judge, he established the Bulletin, and I, James O'Meara, having already established a reputation as a journalistic prostitute, was naturally selected as the fittest person in the world to have editorial charge of such a paper. I wrote whatever he wanted me to write, regardless of truth or consistency."

There is an anecdote of Cunningham, the poet-player, which O'Meara may, perhaps, claim the benefit of. A well-fed and oleaginous dignitary of the church, coming along one Sunday where the poor poet was plying his fishing-rod in a stream near Durham reprimanded Cunningham very severely for desecrating the Sabbath, when the poet, with that gentleness of manner which always distinguished him, replied: "I hope God and your reverence will pardon me for this seeming profanity of the sacred day, for I have no dinner to eat except what lies at the bottom of this pool." But there is a wide difference between fishing in the limpid pool and rooting in the filthy mud of corruption. Horace had "The Clean Shirted Bummer" in his mind when he wrote:

> Ibit eo, quo vis, qui zonam perdidit.

The letting out of this secret of the old railway litigation calls to mind some of the performances in connection with the litigation in the State courts about that time. Whenever the attorneys of Mr. Holladay had a motion to argue or a case to try, the event was always preceded by the most astonishing degree of activity in surveying, grading, running lines, &c., and especially in surveying out such switches and local tracks as were supposed to be greatly desired by the people about where the court was to be held. This activity would last till the case or motion was decided, and then cease immediately, never to be resumed till another like occasion was reached. The people at that time were wildly excited on the subject of railways. We don't know, however, whether the card thus played ever took anything or not. It took nothing in the U. S. Court, and—that's what's the matter now.

And this reminds us of another "little joke," illustrating the intensity of O'Meara's loyalty to Holladay. We are informed he has lately been exhibiting, under pledges of secrecy, but in the most miscellaneous manner, a letter written by his friend and patron, Mr. Holladay, and which is to be published ere long, unless Mr. Holladay pays him some money he owes him. This letter, we are told, was written at Clatsop Beach last fall, addressed to General Ingalls, an old friend of the writer, supposed to have influence with the President, and in it the writer, after felicitating himself on the happy turn his domestic affairs had just taken, goes on to say that he is greatly embarrassed financially, and wants his old friend Ingalls to "do something" for him; that he had spent $250,000 to keep Oregon Republican, and was entitled to something from the Government, and "must have something;" and that if Ingalls would get him something—"something big," to use his own phrase—he would "divide."

Isn't O'Meara loyal, though!

If our mentioning this letter at this time should spoil any plan O'Meara may happen to have for turning an honest penny in the way of a consideration for withholding the publication of the letter, we should regret it very much indeed; and we hereby apologize in advance.

But we have already devoted too much space to this characterless Bohemian, who writes with equal ease, with equal flippancy, with equal impudence, and with equal disregard of truth, on all sides of all questions. We should not, perhaps, have felt called upon to gibbet him, if he had seen proper to treat us with the courtesy due among journals; but we have only done for him at this late day what ought to have been done long ago.

A POINT ON WHICH THE BULLETIN IS AUTHORITY.

Referring to Andrew Johnson's egotistical harangue before the Senate on the Louisiana resolution, the Portland Bulletin says:

> Andy has made a speech characteristic of himself in the Senate. From the telegraphic account of it we infer it is quite full of his peculiar ideas of governing the South; and that is, let everybody do as they please, "and the devil take the hindmost."

There is good reason why the ring organ's opinion of Johnson's speech should be accepted as conclusive. The editor of that paper ought to be authority on that subject as he conducted a Johnson newspaper during the memorable contest of 1866, between Johnson and the Republican party. If he does not know what sort of a speech is "characteristic" of the great constitutional circle-swinger, and what are his "peculiar ideas of governing the South," who does? Those "peculiar ideas of governing the South" were the precise points on which Johnson seceded from the Republican party, and the present editor of the ring Republican organ of this city, we are persuaded, would never have been the zealous advocate of those "peculiar ideas" which he was, without having a clear comprehension of them. That is the one subject on which the editor of the Bulletin should be accepted as authority.

THE TIMES ON THE CAUCUS SYSTEM.

The N. Y. Times of March 16th, in an editorial discussion of the caucus system well says: The obvious use of a caucus is for consultation and exchange of views. A vote of a legislative caucus is not binding upon its members, but it decides how many of those present are in favor of a certain course. A member of a caucus is not expected to vote one way in it and another way outside of it. When the "Force bill" was in the Republican House caucus, it was opposed by members who did not vote for it on its passage. We do not understand that they thereby ceased to be Republicans, any more than that the action of those who voted for it committed the minority of their colleagues, or the Republican party, to their associated responsibility. There must be some concert of opinion and action among members of the same party in any legislative body. Nobody can blame the minority in the House for holding a caucus to decide on the parliamentary tactics to which they may resort in order to delay or defeat a bill to which they are opposed. Why is a caucus of the majority objectionable when it meets to devise means to meet the opposition? But when a caucus, or a convention, takes away a man's right of private judgment, it becomes an instrument of oppression it cannot live long.

> By means of its widespread influence and having the advantage of making the first statement to the public through the telegraph, and thus wielding the benefit of first impressions, it [the Associated Press] has and is daily exercising a secret power, etc.—Ring Organ.

If the managers of the ring organ should determine to include an English grammar among the old books out of whose contents they manufacture their bogus telegrams, it is to be hoped the editor of the organ, notwithstanding his disavowal of any part or lot in the fabrication of dispatches, and notwithstanding his throwing upon the business manager all responsibility for that practice, will for once relieve the business manager of his task. It would make no difference to the readers of the dispatch, and the exercise might do the editor and the readers of his own productions "an amazin' sight of good."

At the Tipperary election, on the 11th of March, at which John Mitchel was elected the second time to Parliament, a large proportion of the voters, including the Catholic clergy, declined to vote.

The ring organ of yesterday contained nearly a column and a half of the OREGONIAN's dispatches of the previous morning, with their date altered to suit.

CITY.

STAGE UPSET—NARROW ESCAPE.—Mr. C. P. Bacon, who returned overland to Portland a few days ago from California, had the misfortune to be capsized while riding in the stage, and came near being permanently crippled, if not killed outright. The place where the stage upset is known as "Cherokee Flat," about 50 miles this side of Redding. It was about 8 o'clock in the evening, and the moon was shining brightly in the heavens. Along on one side of the route a ditch had been dug several feet deep, and the earth thrown into the road to improve its condition. When the attention of the driver was called for a moment to something else, the team went too close to the ditch, and the wheels slipping past the edge, the stage came over in a rush. Mr. Bacon, who was sitting on the "boot," with the driver, was thrown violently over against a fallen tree at the roadside, his left shoulder and arm receiving the full brunt of the shock. Before he could extricate himself from the position, the stage came down and caught his left leg, below the knee, and held him as tightly as if the limb was clutched between the jaws of a vise. The driver also came down and settled on Mr. Bacon, which did not tend to render his position any more comfortable. There were six horses attached to the stage, and no sooner was the vehicle fairly over on the side, than the team swung almost straight around and broke the "fore hounds," short off. The driver held on desperately to the lines, and managed to keep the team in check, until several of the passengers scrambled out of the capsized stage and took hold of the leaders. Fortunately, a most disastrous runaway was prevented, and no doubt several lives saved. With considerable difficulty, the stage was righted, but the disabled condition of the same, prevented the passengers from riding further. The accident occasioned a delay of about five hours, when an open wagon was obtained and the wet and benumbed passengers conveyed to the next station. Mr. Bacon could not walk or stand alone for considerable time and suffered very much. After receiving what medical attention could be obtained, he was able to resume the journey on the following day. He is still suffering some from the effects of the accident, but is thankful that he escaped so fortunately.

TOWN AND GOWN.—To those who have heard the Rev. Mr. Bentley in the pulpit the announcement that he was to appear on the platform and lecture on the above subject has been a matter of interest for several days, and a fair audience greeted him at the Taylor street church last evening. The somewhat unique topic chosen for the lecture from its wording was understood by many to have some reference to clerical robes, but really meant the gown of the student as worn in the old colleges and universities of England. The system of government and instruction practiced in those institutions, especially that of Cambridge, was reviewed at some length, the kind of scholars which it turned out described, the aristocracy of blood and the aristocracy of intellect which were to be found there, the rivalry that often existed between the towns-people and the students, which sometimes even assumed the phase of riot and bloodshed, and produced destruction of life, were all depicted in the speaker's elegant and forcible style, proving highly entertaining to his hearers. His comparison of the systems of education prevalent in Europe and America were, of course, in favor of that practiced on this side of the water, and we judge him to be a staunch advocate of the co-education of the sexes, which he thinks will, ere long, be the rule in all the higher institutions of our land, as they now are in our public schools. These latter he considered the richest boon enjoyed by American youth, upon the maintenance of which in all their broad and well founded principles, so largely depend the future prosperity and glory of our country. Without being able to give even a brief synopsis of the lecture, we may remark that one displaying more literary or more deeply interesting, embellished with more thought or more appropriate illustrations, it has not been our lot to hear for a long time.

DISCHARGED BY ACCIDENT.—Yesterday morning at an early hour, while a gentleman was examining a double-barreled shotgun in the barroom of one of the hotels of the city, one barrel was accidentally discharged. Quite a number of persons were in the room at the moment, and the accidental discharge produced an impression as startling as it was sudden. It is wholly needless to add that everybody was badly scared for about five or six seconds, especially the gentleman who was inspecting the gun. When the smoke of battle rolled away, and the true situation of affairs was revealed, it was ascertained that no one had sustained injuries worthy of note. Most luckily for all concerned, the barrel which was discharged contained only a blank cartridge. The barkeeper, who happened to be standing in range, had one of his wrists slightly powder-burned by the charge. Had the weapon been loaded with shot, the result would have been very serious. As a rule, a strange gun ought never to be examined in a crowd. It is liable to be a little "pranky," you know.

AN OREGON BOY.—In the Oakland (Cal.) Daily Transcript of March 10th, is published a prize oration delivered a few weeks ago at the State University, Berkely, by Mr. Fred V. Holman. This young man is a son of our fellow townsman, J. D. Holman, Esq., and is completing a course of study at the State University of California. "Fred" has been in attendance at that institution for nearly three years past, and expects to graduate with the full honors of the University in June next. The subject of the young man's oration is "The Life and Work of Agassiz." The effort is one of which any student might well be proud, and the fact that the oration was published, is sufficient evidence of its merits. The numerous friends of the young gentleman will be gratified to learn of the success which is attending him in the prosecution of his studies.

SCHOOL ELECTION.—Elsewhere notice is given by Mr. Holman, school clerk for district No. 1, of the annual election which, according to law, will be held on the 5th of next month. This election will be held at Masonic temple, corner of Alder and Third streets, between the hours of 2 and 6 P. M. The object of such election will be to choose one school director for the period of three years, and a clerk for one year. There will also be a meeting of the voters of this school district on Monday evening, April 12th, at the central school house, at the hour of 7:30 o'clock. Such meeting will be for the purpose of hearing the annual reports of the directors and clerk; also for the purpose of levying a tax for the ensuing year, and to attend to all other business which may properly come before the meeting.

BUOY ANCHORS.—Two very large anchors for buoys will be taken down the Columbia on the Astoria boat to-day and be located at the proper places. These anchors were brought up about two weeks ago to have some necessary repairs made. They have been located near the mouth of the Columbia to mark the channel at the bar for a long time. Tides and currents in their ever-changing mutations at length wore out the "eyes" to which were attached the buoys. The anchors were accordingly raised from the bed of the river and brought up to one of the fisheries, where the needed repairs have been made. On reaching Astoria the anchors will be conveyed down to the bar by the lighthouse tender Shubrick or one of the tugs, and located at the proper places.

LENNOX CASTLE.—This vessel is now lying off the mouth of the Columbia awaiting an opportunity to cross the bar. For several days the weather has been so stormy that it is found impossible to bring vessels over. On Tuesday last the tug went out and hitched on to the Lennox Castle and attempted to tow her in. The wind was blowing so fiercely that after several ineffectual attempts to bring the vessel in the tug was compelled to abandon further efforts and return. As soon as the present stress of weather abates the effort will be renewed, doubtless with better success.

COMPLAINED OF.—Two places on Washington street, where pedestrians are liable to meet with an accident, have been complained of. One is the broken planks in the sidewalk near Second street, and the other at the corner of Fifth street, the planking of an apron being torn off. Immediate attention should be paid to these places, else suits for damages may follow.

GOT LEFT.—Two energetic runners for hotels in this city thought they would make a big haul of passengers by being on board of the steamer Oriflamme on her passage from Astoria to this port, and accordingly they went on Monday's boat to be there in season to connect. When the steamer came in they boarded her, and prior to leaving Astoria the purser called on the enterprising runners for thirty dollars each. This they did not anticipate, expecting to make the trip for one-fifth the amount demanded. They couldn't see advancing the increased sum, and accordingly struck for shore, coming up the following day on the river steamer; and so the hotels for which they were advanced agents did not lodge many passengers from the Oriflamme on Tuesday night.

PRISONER TAKEN BACK.—Cook alias Smith who made such a desperate effort to effect an escape a few days ago from the sheriff of Cowlitz county, at Kalama, was brought to this city on Tuesday evening. He was placed in the city jail for safe keeping, and yesterday afternoon in obedience to instructions received from the authorities of Yamhill county, the prisoner was taken to Lafayette in custody of the deputy sheriff. Cook has been indicted by the grand jury of Yamhill county for the crime of burglary. The circuit court is now in session there, and the case will come up for trial in a few days.

DREDGER—SNAG-PULLER.—Tuesday morning the dredger, after having been placed in excellent condition for work, was towed down the river. Work will commence first at St. Helens bar. A full crew of men are employed, and operations will be pushed forward as rapidly as the state of the weather and stage of water will permit. Mr. Buchanan, a gentleman of extended experience, will superintend the work this season, as he has that of preceding years. Some very effective work is now being performed by the government snagpuller along the channel of the upper Wallamet. Captain Smith has charge of the work.

LINES DOWN.—The heavy rain and wind storm of Tuesday night played havoc with the telegraphic lines in all directions. Yesterday morning the only line which was in operating condition was the one between Portland and St. Joe. Above Oregon City in one place the poles were washed away and the line prostrated. Mr. Crouch, the repairer, was busily engaged in putting up the lines. Late last evening the line south began to work. The lines north were prostrated, and have not yet been raised.

RETURNED.—Mr. C. P. Bacon, the well known livery stable keeper, returned to this city overland from California on Monday evening. He went below some weeks ago, taking with him six of his best and fastest horses for the purpose of disposing of them to parties in California on advantageous terms. Mr. Bacon succeeded in selling all his animals at very fair prices, notwithstanding the market is quite dull at present and horses are being brought in considerable numbers from the East.

IN THEIR NEW HOUSE.—Since the last fire alarm, Saturday, Hook and Ladder Co. have placed their truck in the new house. The building is not in condition for the reception of furniture, carpets, etc., and in the meantime the boys will occupy the room at present used for storing the truck. The occupation of the new house was necessitated by the corporation building being put in use for storing hose, etc.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Eastern oysters at Old Waller's.

Mr. James Dolan has overhauled the United States House, and offers excellent accommodations at very low prices. See card.

Mr. Geo. Neimeyer, of the firm of Neimeyer & Utter, returned on the steamer with an elegant assortment of cloths, from which the firm are prepared to cut to suit all tastes. Both these getlemen have a thorough knowledge of what constitutes a fit, and all who call may depend on the latest styles.

Quite a change has taken place in the establishment of Fishel & Roberts. The rear of the store has been fitted up in a tasty manner as a display department for cloths, where those desirous of having their clothing made to order can select as they please. While we were present yesterday the clerks were busily engaged in unpacking fresh invoices recently ordered by Mr. Roberts, who is now in San Francisco buying new goods. The stock, though large at present, will be still further increased next week. Dull times do not seem to affect the business, as the firm are constantly adding to their stock, having no fears while they can offer their patrons something new, an improved fit, and sell at greatly reduced prices.

THE COURTS.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, J.

WEDNESDAY, March 24th, 1875.

U. S. vs Samuel Goldstein; defendant arraigned and plea of not guilty entered.

U. S. vs John Curry; same proceedings.

Grand jury returned two bills of indictment.

U. S. vs John A. Carr; extortion of money under color of office; received and filed; defendant allowed until to-morrow to file demurrer.

U. S. vs Chas. McDonald; for cutting timber on public lands; received and filed.

Grand jury return one true bill.

U. S. vs John A. Carr; same order as in other case.

Adjourned until to-morrow at 10 A. M.

AMUSEMENTS.

NEW MARKET THEATER.—This new and popular place of amusement was crowded last evening by a refined and appreciative audience, on the occasion of the presentation of the familiar drama of "Rip Van Winkle." Under the glamour of a hundred gas jets, the theater presented a scene of dazzling brilliancy, the equal of which has never before been witnessed in this city. The play was very acceptably rendered by the new company, and failed in no essential particular to afford satisfaction to the large audience. The scenery was complete and perfect in its working, and added greatly to the effect and success of the play.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

H. W. Prettyman, et ux, to Lydia B. Northup; a piece of land containing 5 acres, situated in Multnomah county; $420.

State of Oregon to James Stevens; southeast quarter of section 33, T. 1 N., R. 4 E.; $320.

City of Portland to Wm. L. Halsey; lots 1 and 4, block 105; $6.

W. L. Halsey and wife to R. N. Wilson; lots 1, 2, 3 and 4, block 105, Couch's Addition; $3,000.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

The members of Cleanthe Grove No. 4, U. A. O. D., propose to hold a reception and soiree at Druids' Hall, corner of First and Taylor streets, on Monday evening, March 29th. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of that Order in the city.

PHOTOGRAPHY.

The very finest photographs are now taken at the new firm of Shuster & Dennie, who have just refitted their rooms, corner of First and Yamhill.

The Oriflamme brought a large invoice of Goods for Beck & Waldman, and additional lots will arrive on the steamer to arrive next week. This enterprising firm keep their stock well assorted, and for that reason they have a continuous run of customers who know this and of course are always able to find something new in the clothing line. Besides their varied stock of men's clothing and furnishing goods the firm keep a well selected stock of youth's suits, which every fond parent should call and see before making purchases. You will find them at the old corner always ready to serve the public.

He has returned and the result of his visit to San Francisco you will observe by calling to-day. We speak of J. KOHN, who is so well known in Portland and throughout the State. The Goods are all out and he is ready to show what is new in the clothing line. The very latest styles will be found among the new importations, and you must be hard to please if you cannot find something in his large stock. We warrant he will give you satisfaction in every respect. Call to-day, while the subject is fresh in your mind.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

He[illegible]vy rains yesterday.

A lig[illegible]t levee at police court yesterday morning.

California vegetables in profusion appear in the markets.

The postage on transient papers is one cent an ounce now.

No new vessels repo[illegible]led off the bar, except the Lennox Castle.

Tuesday night is reported to have been very stormy at Astoria.

Farmers and gardeners are "up to their eyes" in work now.

The stilt-walking mania threatens to become epidemic again among the boys.

The schooner Dreadnought, from San Francisco, will be due next Monday.

Lovers of green peas can obtain that vegetable now—at the price of much silver.

The steamer Oriflamme will sail for San Francisco to-morrow at 4 o'clock P. M.

Good weather for "rheumatics." Keep your feet dry and warm and your head cool.

Every person is looking for and daily expecting to see the "clearing up" shower.

A clever statistician estimates that courtships average three cords of wood each.

To-day the lighthouse tender Shubrick will sail from Astoria. Destination, the north.

Peerless Division No. 2, Sons of Temperance, will meet this evening at Nonpareil Hall.

Sheriff Jeffrey and his deputy were busy yesterday in furnishing tax-payers their autographs.

Navigation on the upper Columbia will probably be resumed in the course of eight or ten days.

The present humid condition of the atmosphere is calculated to dampen the ardor of base ballists.

B. J. Pengra, of Eugene City, passed Carlin on the 16th inst., bound west. He is now in San Francisco.

Stamp your checks before you present them at the bank, as they don't stand that sort of thing any more.

It is expected that the work at upper Umatilla rapids will be completed by the 28th of the present month.

The O. S. N. Co.'s barge Columbia is still loading with railroad iron from the ship Arauco, mid-stream.

The latest in umbrellas is an oval pane of glass inserted in the front breadth to "sight" anything approaching.

The committees connected with the German fair are still industriously at work. The fair commences on Monday week.

The inclemency of the weather delays work on several of the new buildings now in process of construction in the city.

The Dramatic News, a daily paper, containing the programme of the new theater, appeared yesterday. It looks very well.

We understand an appropriation has been made for the new custom house, and as soon as official notice is received work will be resumed.

Many of the principal streets of the city were greatly flooded yesterday morning from the effects of the rain storm of the preceding night.

Several members of the College Base Ball Club were in town on Tuesday. They came down to attend a private party given by a young lady formerly of Salem.

"This is a door," is painted on a sign opposite the door leading to the office of a wholesale house down street. They must have a good many visitors from the "cow counties."

Fred Cole is slowly recovering, and strong hopes are entertained of his recovery. He is suffering considerably at present from pneumonia in the lung through which the ball passed.

Pruners should be required to haul away the brush which is lopped off from the shade trees. We observe unsightly heaps of brush lying about near the edge of the sidewalks in various portions of the city.

Mr. Hasselman, the clever and experienced artist, has just finished a very handsome background scene for Buchtel & Stolte's photographic gallery, which will be a most useful and ornamental adjunct to the establishment.

The Gussie Telfair having completed discharging 50 tons of coal for the Salem gas works, and seven tons of old rope for the Clackamas Paper Mill Company, at the eastside wharf, has been hauled alongside the O. S. S. Co.'s dock.

FARM FOR SALE.

One hundred and sixty acres of land, partly under cultivation, near Hubbard Station, eastside railroad. For further information inquire of W. S. HALPRUNER, Plumber, First st., bet. Taylor & Salmon.

New goods at Johnson & Quinn's, on Stark street, two doors west of the Portland Gas Co.'s office.

Fabre & Barnes, Central Market, will be open after the theater is out this evening.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

An Important Fact.

The voluntary testimony of thousands establishes beyond all doubt a fact of vital importance to the sick and debilitated, viz: that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an absolute specific for remittent and intermittent fever, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, mental depression, sleeplessness, chronic diarrhœa, and all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. The unmedicated stimulants usually prescribed in these cases only aggravate the symptoms, instead of removing them. The Bitters, on the contrary, act as a corrective and invigorant, without producing the unpleasant and dangerous consequences of the old school practice. The action is mild and soothing to the irritated stomach and bowels; prompting digestion and preventing flatulence, nausea, headache and all intestinal irregularities. A wineglassful before meals greatly assists digestion. The convalescent may use them with great benefit, as a means of restoring strength and cheerfulness.

Do not neglect a cold. Thousands have been carried to early and unnecessary graves by not resorting to some sure and reliable means of cure. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY is offered as a cure of nearly half a century's standing, and is in all respects the best for coughs, colds, bronchitis, whooping cough, etc.

CÆSAR covered his head and gray hair with a laurel crown. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR covers gray heads with the still more welcome locks of youth.

CROUP DISARMED OF ITS TERRORS.

The croupy cough—so alarming to the ear and so dangerous to life—to which children are subject, may be immediately relieved by administering a dose of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. When given to a child who seems to be choking under the effects of a spasmodic and husky cough, the effect is electrical, as many a mother will testify. In fact there is no affection of the throat or the lungs, short of the actual disorganization of the tissues and membranes which it will not cure.

LITTLE JOHNNY'S COMPOSITION.

THE SNAKE.

Snakes is mostly pison, but some don't. My father says they used to walk on their tails, the same as his, but now they has to walk on there belly for foolin' Eav; but they seems to like it that way best. Snakes is said to be the same as serpence, but I always thought a serpenny was the biggest. The rattle snake's skin is too short for him, and don't quite cover all his bones, and when he wiggles they make a nois. My sister's young man he says it's the folt of the rattle snake's tailor, in a measure.

There is one wich is got stripes and is call garter snake, but it aint got no buckle, and aint much worn. It might be fastened with a 'asp, like a trunk, but not the elephance.

The eel would be a snake if it wasn't so good to eat, wich makes 'em a fish. If you put a eel in your brother's bed it will be a snake when he gets in, and he will holler [illegible]

There is a kind of snake which takes its tail in it's m[illegible]outh and roles. Once a little boy seen one of 'em [illegible] rolein', and he thought it was some boy's hoop go[illegible] it away, and he run after it with a stick, to role [illegible] home for hisself; but as soon as he bit it it let [illegible] its tale and bit him good on the nose. Som[illegible] fokes tel fibs, but I seen this myself. That li[illegible] the boy is now a old man and my father, and I h[illegible]pe it will be a warnin' to him.

Snakes eat frogs like Fr[illegible]ench, and them in the menagerie has a rab[illegible]it. One day a big un in the menagerie swol[illegible]ed his blanket, and the keeper beleeved so[illegible] boy had stole it, so he give him another, and he swolered that un too. When the keeper he come round agin and didn't see no blankit he begun to think things, but the snake he lookt up at him so inocent he was ashamed and went and got him a other, but watcht. Wen he seen the snake a swolerin' that un too, he went and fecht a piller and threw it to him, and said, "Now if your agoin' to make up your bed inside like that you better take this piller, and wen yout turned in I'le pass you down a bottle of hot water for your feet, and make you comfortable. What time would you like to be woke in the mornin'?"

There is snakes as long as trees, wich eats gotes alive. When the gotes is down they can't breathe, but the snakes can't neither, and then it is wich can hold out the longest.

A CONVICT'S NUPTIALS.

[From the N. Y. Herald of March 11.]

Shortly after the meridian bell at Sing Sing Prison had summoned over thirteen hundred convicts to the mess room, yesterday, a sleigh was drawn rapidly to the main entrance of the prison, and the driver, having jumped from his seat, assisted a female who carried an infant in her arms, to alight, having for her object the securing of its father's name for her babe, and for herself the honored title of "wife." Her name proved to be Mary Ann Downing, an orphan without even relatives, living in Williamsburg.

On being shown into Warden Walker's private office she was kindly received by inspector Graves. To his thoughtful and considerate interrogatories regarding her feelings toward the convicted father of her child in view of his present hopeless condition, which must continue for years to come, she replied that to be made his lawful wife was the dearest wish of her heart. Her infant, she stated to the inspector, will be two months old on Friday, and that the mother of her intended husband (and with whom she expects to live while he is in prison) had been led to believe that they were man and wife.

Inspector Graves then directed that the intended bridegroom be sent for, and one of the prison officers ushered in an uncouth individual, about 22 years old, and dressed in the garb of a convict. This person was James Dolan alias Franley, the object of Mary Ann's solicitude.

Chaplain Canfield, whose services had been enlisted for the occasion, walked into the office and, having nodded in a friendly manner to the young woman, sat down to await events. When Inspector Graves had questioned the convict as to his sincerity in the important step he was about to take, the Chaplain arose, saying if there be no legal obstacle thereto, he would proceed to perform the ceremony, and then and there pronounced them to be "man and wife."

An impressive prayer followed, in which the Chaplain earnestly invoked a blessing on the newly married couple.

After conversing for a few minutes the couple separated, the bride proceeding with her offspring toward the railroad depot, while the bridegroom was escorted by a keeper back again to his task.

The Yankton, Dakotah Herald states on authority of Delegate Armstrong, from Washington, that the treaty of the United States with the Sioux Indians, whereby the Black Hills country was set apart as a reservation, was never ratified by Congress, and that the best authority says it will not stand if tested. This is also confirmed by other gentlemen who were in Washington in 1866 7, when the matter was under discussion. The excitement increases there with regard to the new gold fields, and parties are preparing to start at once.

SLUSH IN THE STREETS.

It is not a day in the dead of winter, but the 10th of the present month, that is referred to in this paragraph from the New York Herald:

Slush, ranging all the way from muddy water to hard, packed snow-ice, superabounded yesterday on all the streets except Broadway. All the narrow streets on which there is much traffic were covered with it to such an extent as to seriously impede travel by vehicles and sadly inconvenience pedestrians who essayed the difficult task of fording the street crossings without wetting their feet. Such of the more narrow streets as are traversed by street railroad lines were more or less scenes of conflict. On Tuesday night gangs of men in the employ of the street cleaning bureau threw the snow, which had been piled by the side of the railroad track in Eighth avenue, back upon the track, covering it to the depth of more than a foot. When the railway men remonstrated the police protected the laborers and the cars were withdrawn, being unable to make their way even if furnished with eight horses and empty. This led to the commencement of legal proceedings to test the powers and duties of the parties in this and similar cases. Everybody who stirred out of doors at all suffered more or less from the slush, but the increasing warmth of the weather, giving promise of a speedy abatement of the nuisance, to be followed by spring enjoyments, compelled even chronic grumblers to reasonable good nature under the infliction which even modern science is not able to prevent or to remove, further than nature and the elements unaided do it.

SQUANDERING LIVES

The fisherman wrestles with the surge,
The sailor sails over the seas
The soldier steps bravely to battle
The woodman lays axe to the tree

They are each of the breed of heroes
The manhood attempted in its rife
Strong hands that go lightly to labor
True hearts that take [illegible]

[illegible] to replenish
The world with the toil [illegible] it needs—
The center of honest will [illegible]
The [illegible] to generous deeds

[illegible]
The sailor is dropped in the sea,
The [illegible] cold [illegible] cannon
The woodman is crushed by his tree

Each prodigal life that is wasted
In many achievements unseen
But lengthens the days of the coward
And strengthens the crafty and mean

The blood of the noble is lavished
That the selfish a profit may find
God sees the lives that are squandered
And we to His wisdom are blind.

ANECDOTES OF SIR WALTER SCOTT

Some Old Letters in Scribner for March are accompanied by a hitherto unpublished life-sketch of Sir Walter Scott by the celebrated artist, Gilbert Stuart Newton. In this installment of 'Old Letters' we find the following anecdotes of the author of 'Waverly'

"At half-past six we went to dine with the Fergussons. The Doctor was quite ill with a cold. Sir Adam Fergusson, Sir Walter Scott's intimate and confidential friend dined there, ourselves, Mrs L, and one of her daughters.

"We had a very charming dinner. Sir Adam has the most marvelous powers of description. He made us laugh heartily and told us, too a great many interesting anecdotes about Sir Walter Scott. He is a very remarkable person himself. He is the original of Dugald Dalgetty.' This is all I find in the old letters about the dinner, but I must tell what I can recollect of the account Mrs X gave me of it in later years. Sir Adam she said, was a tall, gray haired man, with a broad Scotch accent. He described how early one morning in Sir Walter Scott's library, when he and Sir Walter tried to make the fire of peat burn and after many efforts, succeeded in some degree at this moment one of the dogs dripping from a plunge in the lake scratched and whined at the window. At last Sir Walter let the poor creature in who coming up before the little fire shook his shaggy hide, sending a perfect shower bath over the fire and over a great table of loose manuscripts. Sir Walter eyeing the scene with his usual serenity, said slowly 'Oh! dear ye ve done a great deal of mischief.' It reminds us of the tale related of Newton. On this same occasion of the dinner Sir Adam Fergusson told of traveling with Sir Walter on the continent and going to see the troops on donkeys and he performed both donkeys and riders with his fingers on the table until his audience was in an agony of laughter

"Fergusson passed the evening with us and we had some music. I asked him, as he was so fond of listening if he didn't sing a little himself. 'I'll tell you an anecdote of Sir Walter Scott,' said he, that will answer your question. One night, when I was staying at Abbotsford Anne Scott had been singing to the accompaniment of her harp a Scotch ballad with a wail for the chorus. Sir Walter turned to me, saying in his strong Scotch accent "Noo, Fergusson, gie us a howl'"

"During one of my visits there,' continued Dr Fergusson, 'among other guests was Hogg 'the Ettrick Shepherd.' I heard a horrible noise in an adjoining room, and after listening some moments to it became alarmed, and said to my host 'What is that noise?' 'Oh!' said he 'it's Hogg—just Hogg composing his verses. He always sings them as he writes them.'"

"Though he liked some rude strains Scott could well attune his ear to softer music, and was very fond of the Moore songs. X sings, that ends

'Short as the Persian's prayer, his prayer at close of day,
Should be each vow of love's repeating
Quick let him worship beauty's precious ray
E'en while he kneels that ray is fleeting

'He used to say, 'Come X let me have that Persian's prayer,' and he would listen with great delight to the singing of it.

'They recalled an amusing story of an old servant who had lived with Scott for nearly a lifetime, and become very much spoiled. Sir Walter at last out of patience with his sins of omission and commission said—

'Donald I think we must part.'

'Part! why? Where's your honor going?'

Of course peace was made, and Donald remained.

'They told sadly of the dear old man returning from Italy (where he went for his health), with his memory impaired. Mrs Arkwright, who had set his 'Pirate's Farewell to Minna' to music, sang it to him. 'Those are very pretty verses' said Sir Walter. 'Who wrote them?'

Charles Scott, Sir Walter's second son is a very clever, agreeable man. I see a good deal of him at the Lockharts, here and elsewhere. Sir Walter was proud of his eldest son Walter who is rather a dull fellow but large and fine-looking. His father used to say that it was enough if a boy knew how to ride and speak the truth, those were the most important things.

"Charles Scott made me laugh about the visitors at Sir Walter's house and Melrose Abbey. See the Abbey by moonlight they must, because of the lines

If thou would'st view fair Melrose aright
Go visit it by the pale moonlight.

'And many a time, said Charles Scott when the moon was not convenient I took a lantern to produce the effect.'"

A SERMON ON MORMONISM

NEW YORK, March 14.—At the Central Methodist Episcopal Church Seventh avenue today Rev O P Lyford pastor of the Methodist church in Provo, Utah, delivered a very excellent and interesting sermon, being a description and exposition of Mormonism and its doctrines. He eulogized the Territory of Utah, stating that it was one of the most interesting portions of this country with rich and fertile valleys and delightful scenery and climate. The people of Utah, however were the most and oppressed and degraded in the world. He characterized Brigham Young as the greatest despot and monster living. The spirit of Mormonism is intense hostility to all human government or law. He claimed that Brigham Young possessed more power than the Pope because the latter governed by legislation while Brigham controls the Territorial Legislature. Holds 100 000 people in the worst bondage and holds the lowest vices as the first principles of religion. He gave a description of the spy system adopted in every village in the Territory, by which all private family matters were reported by spies to Brigham. In this way Brigham controlled elections. He also gave a vivid picture of the horrible condition of society in consequence of the practice of polygamy in nearly every city in Utah. It is the habit of saying that no matter where he travels in the Territory Brigham is never far from home. It is a general thing and the speaker to see a Mormon with a family of five or six wives and twenty or more children living in a hut containing only two or three rooms. Under such circumstances the children of such families could not possibly grow up with the slightest sense of morality. He related numerous instances of the condition of the Mormon Church and in conclusion said the founders of the Methodist Church at Provo had resolved to remain in that God forsaken Territory, notwithstanding the opposition of the Mormons and solve the Mormon problem by establishing Christian schools and churches, and disseminating Christian literature for where these influences exist Mormonism must perish

It appears that all efforts to effect a change in the office of the First Comptroller of the Treasury have failed. Secretary Bristow said to-day that the President had no intention of removing Comptroller Taylor, and it is equally certain that he does not intend to resign.

In local monetary circles matters have been dragging on in about the same channel for a month past no particular day bringing out any new features though the general tendency has been towards rather more conservatism on the part of bankers and other lenders. The demand for accommodation however has not been of very large volume and hence the tendency to closeness above noted has been very slow

There seems to be reason to believe that gold has about reached the highest point as latest advices from the East note the fact that some withdrawals of specie from the Bank of England for shipment to America have been made which if continued might seriously frustrate the operations of the gold ring in New York. How this ring has managed the gold market in Wall street during the past few months is thus told in the Journal of Commerce of March 8th from which it would appear that the finances of the country are tossed up and down by the bulls and bears of New York as they please. The Journal says

The threatened squeeze in cash gold was effected this morning at the opening of the market. The first rate at the board was 1 per cent for borrowing, and from this the rate was speedily advanced to 1¾, and was there maintained during the early part of the day. The price opened at 115 and occasional sales were made at ¼ but the principal business was done at a split between 115⅛@¼. Early in the afternoon cash gold became heavier and loaned at 2 per cent for carrying but the rate immediately changed to 1-64 for the use and again moved to the carrying side standing at 6@5 per cent at the close borrowing flat. The clearing house returns show that about $ 000 000 was withdrawn from the market in order to effect the squeeze. This afternoon considerable amounts of gold were bought at 115 but there was no indication of a renewal of the squeeze to-morrow though parties connected with the clique promise to force even higher rates than those of the middle of February &

A dispatch of the 19th says there were five millions of dollars in the gold pool and the clique were pushing the price up daily. The operation of withdrawing gold from the street by the combination has been going on slowly for three weeks past, and commenced when the price was 13. There is a heavy short interest. The leaders of the pool are not positively known but they are supposed to be Drew Robinson and Gould

Among merchants we hear no general expression of a feeling of discouragement but that some are disappointed at the backward state of business at a period so late in the spring cannot be denied. March now so near its close has not been a good a month as was anticipated though some find consolation in the consideration that if the spring trade sets in late it will extend so much further into the summer months. This idea however does not satisfy those who have made extensive and expensive preparations to meet the demands of an early opening of the business of the year. In the line of dry goods this market is more largely supplied than last spring. Prices as a rule are lower than before for years and every inducement to interior merchants to purchase can be found here which San Francisco offers. Groceries with the bare exception of coffees, are held at firm figures and stocks though not unusually large are ample to meet the wants of the trade. Boots and shoes of which there are full stocks of favorite brands are perhaps but little changed as a rule from the quotations for same one year ago but some are offered at lower rates. Trade manifests a fair amount of activity and though individual transactions are not generally large the aggregate volume of this trade is quite up to the average

Notice to Mariners

Notice is hereby given that a light house has been erected by the government of Canada on Port Atkinson on the northwesterly entrance to English Bay and Burrard Inlet in the Straits of Georgia British Columbia latitude 49° 19 4 north longitude 123° 15 51 west. A revolving white light on the catoptric principle elevated 119 feet above high water will be exhibited on the 1st of May next. The light will show at intervals of one minute making a complete revolution in two minutes. The tower is a square building with dwelling house attached painted white situated 49 feet from summit to centre of light. The light will be visible round an arc of the horizon from the entrance to Burrard Inlet to an E. by N ½ N bearing and should be seen in clear weather fourteen or fifteen miles distant. The light should not be brought to bear to the east ard of north by vessels in the straits as it is bearing, will only lead clear of Sturgeon Bank off Frazer river. The bearings are magnetic. The light is for coast purposes and to indicate the entrance to Burrard Inlet

EXPORTS.

Per British bark Corsica dispatched to Cork for orders by Henry Hewett & Co March [illegible] 10 [illegible] bushels wheat valued at $[illegible]

Produce Market.

WHEAT—There is no further development in the market in this cereal the expectation of leading buyers being as they allege that in a few days the present excitement will subside and matters settle down to about the condition which affairs were in two weeks ago. In the meantime a few lots rather small in quantity are changing hands holders generally obtaining $1 40 per cental for such as they desire to sell if of good shipping grade.

OATS—The surplus yet in the State we think is held more largely in the farmers hands than many persons think some asserting that before the warehouses along the line of transportation are empty that there are but few lots in the country for sale. While we do not estimate the remaining surplus as being up to the average taking one year with another we yet think a brisk demand at [illegible] advanced prices would bring out quite a large amount. Quotations at present, are [illegible]c per bushel. Receipts are very light

FLOUR—The market is unchanged in important particulars. Movements are fairly active and both receipts and shipments active. We quote at $[illegible] barrel for jobbing lots of standard extras $1 for good outside and country brands and $[illegible] for superfine

BARLEY—The demand is fair for local consumption but receipts very light. Quotable nominally at $1 25 per hundred lbs for good feed and $1 [illegible] 40 for choice brewing

MILL FEED—Owing to the fact that a number of country mills have suspended work this article has become scarce and bran is entirely out of the market and nominally quotable at an advance of $1 per ton other descriptions firm but unchanged

HAY—Is still in moderate request at $10@11 per ton for timothy with a decline in the receipts. Wild hay finds slow sale at $7@7 50

POTATOES—There is a fair demand for good lots for shipment at 72½@75c per bushel the range of quotations being [illegible]

ONIONS—The demand is rather duller again and [illegible] are given as buyers figures

APPLES RIPE—Receipts though decreasing in quantity are larger than was anticipated at the time of the freeze. Quotations are now [illegible] $1 per box best qualities assorted and neatly packed for shipment

APPLES DRIED—The trade is inactive but prices are nominally steady at [illegible]

BACON—Shipments are being made of the surplus in this market to San Francisco [illegible] for [illegible] Receipts are not very large [illegible] this week

LARD—There is a fair demand for good quality in tins and kegs quotable at 14c [illegible] in the former and 13c in kegs

BUTTER—There is nothing new in this article to note the supply being still short of the demand while common lots are plentiful. Prices depend on quality ranging from 20@30c [illegible]

LARD—There is more distinction between kegs and tins quotable in the former at [illegible] and in the latter at 14c

BUTTER—Prices are nearly as last given with a downward tendency, and quotations must be according to quality. Choice dairy is in brisk demand. Common is more plentiful.

Premium Carriage Factory

E. SMITH,

CARRIAGE MAKER,

Cor. Jefferson and Front Streets,

PORTLAND OREGON

Is now making First-Class EXPRESS WAGONS, BUGGIES and CARRIAGES of all kinds.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

At the Oregon State Fair recently held at Salem Mr E Smith was awarded the First Premiums on an Open and also on a Top Buggy. The latter was built from a design published in the June number of The Carriage Monthly styled Monitor Piano Box Buggy and elicited much admiration.—The Philadelphia Carriage Monthly

Mr E Smith of Portland has on exhibition at the State Fair two Buggies both Open and Top and certainly exhibit as good workmanship as can be found on the Coast while several very important improvements have been applied especially in fronting the same so as not to weaken the axles by putting the bolts through the same. The commendable enterprise that Mr Smith has displayed we understand is being amply rewarded in our city. He will be awarded the first Premium.—Oregonian

Mr E Smith Carriage Maker of Portland exhibited one Open and one Covered Buggy upon the Fair Grounds which deserve special mention. These Carriages are especially light and durable and those in need of such a purchase—and who isn't—should call upon him before purchasing, elsewhere. Of course Mr Smith bore off the blue ribbons—New Northwest

Mr E Smith Carriage Maker corner of Front and Jefferson streets took two Premiums at the State Fair for First Class Buggies. This speaks well for his work and is a credit to Portland.—Pacific Christian Advocate

HOME MANUFACTURE—Mr E Smith Carriage Maker of this city has some splendid Vehicles on exhibition at the Fair—Enterprise

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Family Physic,

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and Purifying the Blood are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every day complaints of every body but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians most eminent clergymen and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed and of great benefit they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar coated they are easy to take and being purely vegetable they are entirely harmless.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY RELIEF OF

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons,

Has been widely used during the last twenty five years in the treatment of these distressing diseases and with such unvarying success that it has gained the reputation of being infallible. The shakes or chills once broken by it do not return until the disease is contracted again. This has made it an accepted remedy, and trusted specific for the Fever and Ague of the West and the Chills and Fever of the South.

Ayer's Ague Cure eradicates the noxious poison from the system and leaves the patient as well as before the attack. It thoroughly expels the disease so that no Liver Complaints Rheumatism Neuralgia Dysentery or Debility follow the cure. Indeed where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels have occurred from Miasmatic Poison, it removes the cause of them and they disappear. Not only is it an effectual cure but if taken occasionally by patients exposed to malaria it will expel the poison and protect them from attack. Travelers and temporary residents in Fever and Ague localities are thus enabled to defy the disease. The General Debility which is so apt to ensue from continued exposure to Malaria and Miasm, has no speedier remedy.

For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN]

Tracking a Murderer.

BOSTON March 25.—The murderer of Mrs. Bingham has been tracked to Gloucester via Salem, the latter place he sold the two rings he [illegible] from the murdered woman's fingers

Mrs. Bingham's Murderer Arrested

BOSTON, March 25.—George Pemberton, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Bingham at East Boston was arrested here this afternoon. In his possession was found a knife belonging to the murdered woman. He is fully identified

The Ice Gorges.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Specials from Renovo on the west branch of the Susquehanna river say that the ice gorge extends from there fourteen miles below but there is no danger to that place as above the ice is soft, while that below is heavy and rests on the bottom of the river. At Lockhaven about 7 miles below Renovo, an ice channel is being cut in hopes to save damage to the town. At Williamsport over 500 men were at work yesterday cutting a channel sixty feet wide and other measures had been taken to prevent damage by high water. At Milton it is believed the river is forming a new channel.

Bishop DeKoven Rejected.

CHICAGO March 25.—The rejection of Dr DeKoven as bishop of Illinois is now an accomplished fact, twenty five of the standing committees of the dioceses in the United States, having voted against his confirmation.

The Eastern Railway War.

CHICAGO March 25.—The war between Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania Central railroads has extended to other lines and to-day it is announced by both the Michigan Southern and Michigan Central roads that fare from Chicago to Buffalo is reduced to $9 which will make fare to New York $18. Freight rates have been reduced over both roads and over the Pittsburg and Fort Wayne and Cincinnati and St. Louis roads to 30 cents per cwt for fourth class.

An Alternative for the Black Hills Adventurers.

CHICAGO March 25.—A special from Sioux City says much anxiety is felt there by friends of parties now in the Black Hills over a report brought in by one of Prof Marsh's exploring party, that "Lame Antelope," with a large body of warriors armed with needle guns has started to attack the miners' camp established in the Hills.

Gen. Ord yesterday telegraphed to one of the miners recently returned to Sioux City, and who asked the General whether he would be permitted to return with reinforcements and provisions, replied as follows "Troops from Fort Laramie and hostile Indians have gone for your miners. For their sake I hope the troops may reach them first, as their orders are simply to bring in the party, confine the leaders, burn their wagons and destroy the outfit."

Special Session of the Louisiana Legislature.

NEW ORLEANS March 25.—Gov Kellogg last night issued a call for an extra session of the Legislature, to meet April 14th. Subjects of legislation are limited to six

First—Adjustment of political difficulties

Second—Revenues of the State.

Third—Amendment of the funding bill so as to change the constitution of the funding board and prevent the funding of illegal obligations.

Fourth—The financial condition of the city of New Orleans

Fifth—Relief of the commerce of New Orleans from excessive port charges

Sixth—To incorporate the board of trade.

Meeting of the Republican Convention

PROVIDENCE March 25.—The Republican State convention met this morning, but adjourned to meet at noon to organize.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

NEW YORK March 25.—This morning all the parties to the suit were present except Beecher and Mrs. Tilton. The first witness was

J. B. Woodley (colored),

A former waiter at Woodhull's house. He testified he lived there when the scandal was published and was arrested at the postoffice for mailing some of the papers. His engagement with Woodhull then ceased. Distributed the "Life of Woodhull" for Tilton. Testified to seeing Tilton at Woodhull's house often sometimes as late as 12 or 1 o'clock sometimes in Mrs. Woodhull's room sometimes in Miss Claflin's. Either of the ladies or Col. Blood would be with him. He was generally writing. Witness heard a conversation between Tilton and Woodhull about the scandal. Tilton told her she ought to publish it. [illegible] couldn't. Said it would crush him. Tilton said Plymouth church was rich and would pay to have it stopped. Said they would pay a hundred thousand dollars to have it stopped. Blood was unwilling to publish it for fear he would get into trouble. Tilton and Blood had considerable talk about it and next day Blood declined to have anything to do with it. The matter was then in print and witness saw the proofs. He once saw Tilton and Mrs Woodhull sitting with their arms around each other. The conversation about the scandal was about four or five weeks before its publication. Mrs Woodhull often talked with witness about it, free love and said Beecher, one of the greatest men that ever lived was a free lover.

Cross-examination which was not concluded at recess developed nothing noteworthy

After recess the cross-examination of the negro Wordley was continued. Witness gave the words of the conversation between Tilton and Woodhull at the time the former brought the proofs of the Beecher scandal. He said Tilton said, "Vic I have got something for you and if you print it it will be one of the best things ever you done." She said "Let's see." And they all Tilton Woodhull, Claflin and Blood sat down on the sofa and began talking. They talked about an hour. This was on Monday. Tilton then said "I dare not publish it, for they would crush me, but you are a woman and you can do it." Witness repeated the story of Blood's refusal to have anything to do with it and Tilton urging him to publish it, saying Plymouth church would give one thousand dollars to prevent its publication. The next day a similar conversation occurred in the same place that is, in Woodhull and Claflin's office. Witness never heard the word of the story about Beecher before that. At the time the witness saw Tilton and Mrs Woodhull sitting on the sofa in Woodhull's office with their arms around each other parties were passing in and out of the office. The sofa was in the middle of the office. Witness had not seen Mrs. Woodhull or Miss Claflin since the time they were on trial for sending their paper through the mails.

The redirect examination added nothing to the testimony already given. The next witness was

H. A. Gray,

A colored resident of Washington City, who testified to having come to New York in 1870 by request of Miss Claflin and was employed by Woodhull and Claflin to wrap up and direct papers. Knew Tilton had been in his office with a note from Woodhull and brought back copy for her paper. Saw Tilton at Woodhull's house about half a dozen times. Was present at Steinway Hall meeting in 1871. Before the meeting he heard Mrs Woodhull and Tilton talking about getting Beecher to preside. Woodhull said he had to or she would make it hotter on earth for him than it was in hell. Tilton said "Oh hell! do it?" He has to do it. Witness worked in the front room of the Broad street office. They had a back office and he one day saw Tilton and Woodhull sitting in there, their arms and heads waving about in a very loving like manner. They used to be in that room frequently. He could hear them talking. He used to see Tilton in the second floor back room which was a bedroom. Witness sometimes went to bed while Tilton was there and when he arose in the morning Tilton was still there

Fullerton waived cross examination of this witness.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Louisiana Judgeship.

WASHINGTON March 25.—Marshal Packard, Judge Pardee and Col Fish, of New Orleans visited the President to day on the subject of his power to appoint Pardee or some other person as district judge of Louisiana but the probability is the office will remain vacant till next session. The President has no power to make an appointment till then. At the last session, Senator Pratt of Indiana was suggested to the President by the judiciary committee and the President was assured that Pratt would be confirmed but the President adhered to Pardee

Rumors of Cabinet Changes.

WASHINGTON March 25.—During Secretary Bristow's absence from Washington, rumors have been circulated that he intends to resign his position and enter upon other pursuits, but the most intimate friends of the Secretary deny the truth of the rumors. Ex Senator Chandler has been mentioned as his successor, but he recently declared that the
